

Andrew Gomez

2/26/24

How Can We Make Our Schools Safer?

Our schools need to be prepared in case someone dangerous tries to hurt us. There are different ways to make schools safer. One way is to make sure all the doors are locked. This helps to keep strangers from getting into the building. The only ones that have keys are the principal, teachers, and other staff.

Nametags are important to identify people. They can be used to know who the students, principal, teacher, and other staff are. If you see someone without a nametag you don't go near them and you tell your teacher.

We need a full-time security officer to make sure we are safe. A full-time security officer would scout the area to look for any strangers. If a stranger comes to the school, the officer can ask them to leave. If they don't leave, the officer can arrest them. If the officer is present at the school, it shows people that the school is protected.

Our school needs a fence around the entire school and gate at the main entrance. The fence makes a barrier between the school and other people. It makes hard for anyone to just come into our school area. The gate allows only the people that go to the school and the staff to go in the buildings. To make it more secure the gate can have a password or code.

In order to have these things, you need money and responsibility. The money buys the equipment needed to do these projects. You need the staff and students to be responsible to pay attention to their surroundings.